

STADIUM BEING PLANNED FOR KEN- TUCKY UNIVERSITY

Students, Faculty and Alumni Plan to Launch Campaign for Erection of Athletic Bowl on Stoll Field at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 22. — Alumni and former students of the University of Kentucky are launching a campaign to build a stadium on Stoll Field with a seating capacity of 15,000 people.

Plans for the proposed undertaking are still in the formative stage, but much interest has been manifested in the proposition by all persons approached on the subject, it was said Tuesday by some of those interested in the project.

It has been estimated that a "U" shaped concrete and stone structure with seats for 15,000 spectators can be built for approximately $7.50 per seat. With a foot ball team of the quality that Kentucky promises to have next year and a few big games on the home grounds, the structure could be paid for in one or two seasons and thereafter would make the athletic department self-supporting and enable the university to take its rightful place with the leading colleges and universities of the south in the athletic line, according to the backers of the stadium idea.

The crying need for better and larger quarters for fans was evident at the Centre-State game this fall. The largest crowd that ever saw a foot ball game in Lexington witnessed that contest and it has been estimated that from 2,000 to 3,000 additional loyal rooters for one team or the other wanted to see it but could not get in the field.

It is pointed out that practically every state university in the south as well as the other large schools either have stadiums or are planning to build them. Vanderbilt has completed a new structure within the past year. Tennessee also has a new stadium. The University of Cincinnati is planning to build one, and the general trend throughout the country is forever increasing crowds at college foot ball games.

Many big eastern colleges with stadiums of immense seating capacity are beginning to worry about what to do with the overflow crowds.

The committee in charge of the "Barn Dance" at the Country Club Saturday night, would appreciate it if all those who expect to attend or who will bring guests, would notify the chairman, Mrs. Kehoe, as soon as possible. The affair promises to be a most unusual enjoyable occasion and every member is urged to attend in appropriate costume.

SACRIFICED HAPPINESS FOR WOMAN HE LOVES

Frank Mayo Plays Powerful Role in "Out of the Silent North."

The public seems never to tire of literature and drama depicting the reaction of people confronted by the real problems of life. A man facing a condition that might arise with anyone, and meeting the crisis with true nobility of spirit, always strikes a responsive chord. This is what Frank Mayo does in his latest Universal attraction, "Out of the Silent North," which comes to the Pastime Theater on Thursday.

Many in private life have sacrificed their own happiness for another. Many have had the bitter realization that someone they loved cared more for another. Many have met such crises with the same quiet magnanimity that characterizes Pierre Baptiste, the ignorant French-Canadian portrayed by Frank Mayo in "Out of the Silent North."

Pierre loves Marcette, daughter of the store-keeper in the trading post where they live. A stranger comes, a man whose polished manners turn the innocent girl's head. Pierre understands, befriends, the stranger and saves his life. It is through this that Marcette realizes Pierre's true greatness. His willingness to sacrifice himself for her eventually gains him the thing on which he had set his heart.

"Out of the Silent North" was directed by William Worthington, who surrounded the star with an excellent cast including such talented players as Barbara Bedford and Lionel Belmore.

Large Publishing House Advertising March Written By Our Local Band Director.

Mr. George D. Barnard, director of the Maysville Boys' Bands, has written many musical numbers and his compositions are being played wherever there are brass bands but he has not recently written anything that has gained such wide circulation as the march written especially for the Kentucky State Fair, named for the local band and dedicated to Governor Edwin P. Morrow.

We have just received a bulletin of the C. L. Barnhouse publishing house of Oskaloosa, Iowa, one of the largest band music publishers in America and in this bulletin an entire page is given over to the advertisement of the "Kentucky Cardinal March."

TRUCK OF MAIL SEIZED BY THIEVES IN CHICAGO TODAY

Postal Authorities Say Bandits Got the Wrong Truck—Load of Registered Mail Getting By Earlier in Day.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—A truck load of mail was seized here today by auto bandits who kidnapped the driver and drove away with the mail sacks.

Postal authorities said the robbers held up the wrong truck and that a load of registered mail which left the postoffice a short time before was the loot sought.

Loss will be small, officials announced.

The truck was loaded with mail to be taken to Omaha by airplane and was en route to Maywood Aviation Field when held up on a South Side boulevard.

The driver, after being forced to accompany the robbers for nearly an hour in a wild drive through the principal boulevards of the city, finally was liberated on the North Side, miles from the scene of the holdup.

The truck had not been located three hours after the robbery. An accurate description of all mail carried by airplane is taken because of the danger that it will be burned or lost, and postal authorities were able to check up accurately the exact character of the loot.
